

100 years Burgenland award

Burgenland is Austria's easternmost province. Every year thousands of guests visit "the land of the sun". Burgenland is particularly characterised by its rich offerings in the areas of culture, nature, wine, health and sports. Burgenland is divided into two different parts. In the eastern part, the wide lowlands of the Pussta stretch across the border in Hungary to the Carpathian Mountains. Europe's only steppe lake - Lake Neusiedl - is also located here. In the south of Burgenland there is a very densely wooded low mountain range that extends to the eastern Alps. In this part of Burgenland there are numerous castles, which in former times served to defend against attacks by the Huns and Turks. Today, the landscape is characterised by pastures, orchards and viticulture.
